

Bank of France Stops Exchange Transfers As Chautemps Resigns

President LeBrun Asks Premier to Form New Government But Bid is Refused Early Today.

BONNET STAYS

Resigning Finance Minister Stays to Direct Dealings During Interim.

Paris, Jan. 14 (AP).—The Bank of France ordered all exchange transactions suspended today "until further notice" as President Albert LeBrun began early morning conference, seeking a new government to replace the shattered people's front cabinet of Camille Chautemps.

Chautemps resigned early today. Chautemps received the president's invitation to form a new cabinet but declined it.

This was announced after the retiring premier had been in conference with LeBrun and Edouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies, at the Elysee Palace.

Growing labor unrest and fall of the franc brought about Chautemps' resignation, after Socialist members quit his cabinet. Georges Bonnet, resigning finance minister, remained to direct the nation's finances in the interim of naming a new cabinet, and the Bank of France instructed to exchange dealers prohibited dealing in all foreign currencies for an indefinite period. Even tourists were prohibited from changing money. Financial sources said that there were to be "no exchange dealings whatsoever."

Bonnet permitted the bourse, stock exchange, to open "as usual."

Seeks Government.

LeBrun sought a government that could solve France's problems of a fluctuating currency, a prospective budget deficit fixed by some at $1,350,000,000, and spreading strikes by workmen protesting increased living costs. He summoned to conference Jules Jeanneney, president of the senate, Edouard Herriot, president of the chamber, and others of the nation's political leaders.

There were some who felt the new government would be a middle-of-the-road cabinet, somewhere in between the broken leftist people's front of Communist, socialist and radical and the conservative right.

Chautemps was mentioned as a prospect to succeed himself, but this seemed increasingly doubtful to many observers. Considered in line were Herriot, radical Socialist and former premier, and the resigned defense minister, Edouard Daladier.

Communists turned from the people's front, were followed by the Socialists, forcing Chautemps to quit, and today the Communist party published a highly critical statement against the retiring premier.

Chautemps Blamed

The party blamed Chautemps for making "a declaration hostile to the working classes" asserting "he said nothing against those responsible for financial panic and those who sabotaged social laws." The party's communique included an appeal to the working classes to unite and reconstruct a people's front to "reply to attacks of speculators and seditious persons."

Presumably their criticism referred to Chautemps' appeal in the Chamber of Deputies for workers to honor their contracts. The appeal was made in his effort to win an industrial truce.

The cabinet presented its formal resignation to President Albert LeBrun at Elysee Palace in the early morning hours, after a special cabinet session Thursday and parliamentary debate which lasted until this morning.

The national monetary unit reached 30.20 to the dollar in unofficial trading after the bourse closed yesterday.

New Strike

A new series of strike movements broke in scattered sections today.

Five hundred workers occupied an artificial silk factory near Valenciennes, and efforts toward arbitration were in progress today. Street car employees at Lyons voted a walkout because of a prospective salary reduction. Metal workers at Lille decided to ask a wage increase.

From mine employees in the Metz region protested the layoff of some men. Eighty-six workers in a gas meter factory at Issy-les-Moulineaux, northwest Paris, occupied the plant to show disapproval of discharge of 44 employees.

Chautemps' was the second of the people's front governments and was formed June 23, 1937, after the ministry of Socialist Louis Blum fell because a conservative Senate refused him decree powers to deal with finances. Blum was

Sports Groups Act In Protest, as R. R. Rules: No Train

Because the New York Central Railroad has postponed its Friday night snow train into the Catskill region, the winter sports associations are up in arms and will hold a meeting Monday night at the Phoenixia Hotel at 8 o'clock to voice a formal protest.

Ken Wilson, president of the Woodstock Winter Sports Association, who informed The Freeman of the action said, "We've been pouring telegrams into New York all day long, hoping that someone will heed the fact that snow conditions could not be more perfect."

Wilson said the meeting Monday night has been arranged for the winter sports groups of Woodstock, Phoenixia, Pine Hill, Big Indian and Fleischmanns.

"Every resort official is pretty much upset," Wilson said. "Here we are with a six-inch snow base and a three- or four-inch powder snow surface. The skiing is perfect, the ice rinks are the tops and here at Woodstock the toboggan slide is in the fastest shape possible."

At Phoenixia, Wilson reported, the ski slopes and trails are excellent. Pine Hill, Big Indian and Fleischmanns are in similar condition.

"And on top of the Central's decision to cut the Catskills off," Wilson said, "it has been announced that the snow trains will run to the Adirondacks and other upstate points. Conditions there can't be better than they are here." He based his statements on reports from the northern section of the state, he said.

Won't Run Trains.

The Freeman was informed by F. W. Gleisner, local trainmaster, that the officials of the New York Central Railroad had decided against running the Friday night snow train.

Regarding the Sunday train, Mr. Gleisner said: "Whether a train will run Sunday depends upon the weather. Should sufficient snow fall between now and Sunday to make good skiing, presumably a train will run." He said, however, he has no definite information on that subject.

Mr. Gleisner said the New York Central has had plans since December 31 for running snow trains to the Catskills. "All that's been lacking," he said, "is sufficient snow."

Had conditions been favorable the snow train would have left New York at 7:30 o'clock tonight, arriving at Kingston about 9:40 o'clock.

Thus the situation rests. The Central won't run the train, the winter sports groups are disgruntled.

"I wonder," Mr. Wilson said, "if a blizzard would satisfy the Central? If not maybe some week-end we can import some real snow."

500,000 Soldiers In Battle Over Lunghai Railway

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Jan. 14 (AP).—A half million Chinese and Japanese troops fought along the ancient Grand Canal tonight in a see-saw battle to determine the fate of Central China.

Spurred by the presence of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and a shakeup in parts of the army's command, Chinese troops counter-attacked across the frozen canal in an attempt to recapture town of Tsinling, which changed hands a half dozen times in costly engagements.

Chiang ordered his chief of staff, General Ho Ying-Chin, to Suckow, the junction of China's main east-west railroad, the Lunghai, and the Tientsin-Pukow line, where General Li Tsung-jen, Kwangsi province warlord, directed defenses.

Until the outbreak of Chinese-Japanese warfare, Chiang had been a bitter enemy of General Li, who, in 1929 was deprived of all posts for launching a defection of Kwangsi generals.

While Shantung General Han Fu-chu was reported by Chinese to be under arrest, his troops—driven from Tsinling—were 10 miles distant, holding the Kinshang highway from which Japanese would be able to out-flank Suchow or march against Kweichow, ancient capital of the Chinese empire.

Purpose of Visit.

Hongkong, Jan. 14 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's tour of the Central China war front, it was disclosed today, was undertaken to stiffen the morale of retreating Chinese troops and to make his generals work together.

The generalissimo was pictured as trying to obtain some measure of cooperation among commanders now operating independently and with little effective resistance against advancing Japanese.

One of the retreating generals—Han Fu-chu, governor of Shantung province—abandoned Shantung with an army of 150,000, virtually intact. (Chinese sources said Chiang arrested General Han yesterday.)

In recent government reorganization Chiang was granted new powers over China's military and civil life. If his attempt to coordinate the command and bolster morale should fail, Hankow, one of the temporary capitals, would be in danger of falling into Japanese hands.

Star of Destiny Rules Japanese, Barnhart Explains to Kiwanis

Y. M. C. A. Executive 25 Years in Korea Traces Growth to Present Dilemma

A Star of Destiny!

Steadfast confidence in such a star, nurtured in a heritage many thousands of years ago, moves the Japanese people in their search for expansion, markets for their products, sources of raw materials and a more abundant life—so declared V. Patrick Barnhart, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for Korea.

Who returned to this country about three months ago after a quarter of a century of service. His address was delivered before members of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon, and poured a more understanding light on the Japanese side of the serious Far East situation.

The meeting also marked the introduction of a new song leader who will on occasion replace Paul Zucca, new Kiwanis president, whose new duties take him from the musical leadership in the club. Kiwanians sang as lustily and wholeheartedly under Harold V. Clayton as they had under their former vocal chief and maintained the standard set in previous efforts.

Secretary Barnhart was introduced by High School Principal Clarence Dumm, as a man capable of giving the club a better understanding of the far eastern situation. The speaker's topic was presented in the form of a question, "What Are Some of the Unheralded Factors in the Far Eastern Situation?" and Mr. Barnhart undertook to answer it.

Race of Small Brown Folk

Thousands of years ago, the speaker began, in certain south sea islands lived a race of small brown people, who for some reason not now known felt an urge to migrate from their warm clime to more northern lands. They moved northward as the years passed and came finally to an island called "Nippon" where they settled. Here they met fierce tribesmen from the Asiatic continent, the Mongols, who were dreaded enemies; and the two races after many years of constant fighting were worn to exhaustion. "As is often the case," said the speaker, "the two became friends and the two nations intermarried to become what is now the Japanese race."

Four hundred years ago this urge to migrate came again and the descendants of the "little brown people" took up the march moving into Korea, Manchuria and northern China. Here they met their first defeat due to a combination of factors, cold climate, operations far from base of supplies and the united will of Chinese tribesmen and Tartars. Slowly the Japanese were driven back from advances made, back until they again were established only on the island of Nippon.

Three hundred years ago the urge came once more, this time the advances were greater and the roads more secure, but the same factors combined and again the Japanese retreated. Fifty years ago the star of destiny gloved anew and this time Korea was taken for good and the rising star fanned the urge—Manchuria fell, and now the armies of the Rising Sun move in conquest through northern China, and have already taken five great provinces, more than half the size of the United States.

Controversy Over Anglican Report Heard in London

London, Jan. 14 (AP).—Controversy swirled today over an Anglican Church commission's 232-page report on religious doctrine, which sets forth that one may reconcile the Biblical account of the world's creation with evolutionary theories, and that the Bible need not be taken as the judge of historical or scientific investigation in any field.

Twenty prominent leaders of the Church of England took 15 years to complete the report dealing with fundamental questions of the virgin birth, angels, demons, evolution and the resurrection. Speedy reaction came first from the Church Association, through its secretary, the Rev. E. C. Bowring, who said today:

"The commission has incubated a report which is merely an added ostrich egg, for they disclaim the idea of defining what doctrine is permissible in the Church of England. According to the archbishop's commission you can think what you like and still be Christian."

The Church Association was founded by evangelical Churchmen who favor simplified forms of worship and oppose ritual of the high church section.

Some of the Findings

Here are some of the findings by the commission:

The Bible—"Its authority must not be taken as prejudging conclusions of historical, critical or scientific investigation in any field."

Virgin birth—Historical evidence is "inconclusive," but this was one of the many things the members split on, with the Archbishop of York, who headed the commission, reporting that he accepted as historical fact the Lord's birth from a virgin mother and his physical resurrection from the tomb.

Paral claims—The Church of England still is bound to resist claims of Japan, but "some of us" envisage a reunion of Christianity under leadership such as "Japany which renounced some of its present claims." Other members of the commission hoped for a reunion "by a more federal type of constitution which would have no need" for such leadership.

Division Over Miracles

Miracles—The commission was divided on whether they occur, but agreed that God "could do" them if he "would." Some held he would not wish to perform them. Angels and Demons—It is legitimate to suspend judgment "or treat them 'symbolically.'"

Resurrection—Jesus' rising from the dead "however explained" is to be understood to have been an event as real and concrete as the crucifixion and an "act by God wholly unique in human history."

Baptism—A vital ordinance of the New Testament.

The Future—"We shall have means of recognizing each other in future life."

President Favors an End To Holding Concerns and Remote Banking Control

J. Charles Snyder Dies, Was Head of County Elections

J. Charles Snyder, 74, widely known resident of Kingston and president of the Ulster County Board of Elections, died at the home of his son, Frederick W. Snyder, 37 Lucas avenue, on Thursday evening. His death followed by one month that of his wife, Mrs. Jennie Barnhart Snyder. Funeral services will be held from the parlors of A. Carr & Son, 1 Pearl street, on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Willwyck cemetery.

Mr. Snyder was born on November 26, 1863, at what is now known as the hamlet of Veteran in the town of Saugerties. He was but four months old when his parents moved to Kingston and he had spent the remainder of his life in this city.

After attending the public schools here and old Kingston Academy he entered the employ of the late James L. Merritt, whose dry goods store was located on Wall street on the site of the present E. Frank Flanagan & Son's clothing store. He remained with the Merritt store for about five years and then went with the George L. Wolven store where he was employed for five years.

31 Years With Laundry

Mr. Snyder later entered the employ of Hood & Webster laundry. Mr. Hood, one of the owners was a brother of Kingston's first chief of place, the late Stephen D. Hood. The firm of Hood & Webster later became Hood & Thomson and then was changed to Thomson's Steam Laundry and in later years was purchased by Senator Arthur H. Wicks who has since operated the laundry. For 31 years Mr. Snyder continued in the employ of the laundry.

There were few men better known in local fireman circles than Mr. Snyder. Over 55 years ago he became a member of Willwyck Hose Co., and he has held every office in that company. Mr. Snyder became a member of the Kingston Fire Fund Association in 1892 and in 1897 he was elected president and held that office continuously until his death. He is also a member of the Ex-empt Firemen's Association.

Active Politically

Mr. Snyder, who resided at 315 Washington avenue, for years was an active figure in Ulster county politics, serving for years as a member of the Republican county committee. He held office at various times serving his ward both as an alderman and later as a supervisor for several terms. He was serving as supervisor about ten years ago when he resigned to become the Republican member of the election board. For the past five years he has served as president of that board.

Mr. Snyder was the descendant of an old Dutch family which settled in Ulster county some two hundred years ago, and since a youth he has been a member of the old First Dutch Church.

Besides his son, Frederick W. Snyder, he is survived by a daughter, Hazel, wife of George S. Dart of Brooklyn, and a grandson, Donald Frederick Snyder.

U.S.-Britain May Show Japan Great Seapower

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP).—Diplomatic officials discussed the possibility today that the dispatch of three United States cruisers to Singapore next month is intended to give Japan a demonstration of the seapower Great Britain and America could combine in the Far East.

Officially, the reason for the trip is to have the American navy represented at the opening of new docks—marking the virtual completion of Britain's formidable Singapore base.

Officials have pointed out that the United States would be handicapped in any wartime maneuvers in the far Pacific by the lack of base facilities at points other than Hawaii and the Philippines. This lack would be overcome, strategists say, if the American fleet could count in such circumstances on the use of the Singapore base.

Observers regarded as significant that the political implications of the move were discussed in advance by Secretary Hull and State Department Far Eastern experts with Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations.

Albert Ottinger Dies; Candidate For Governor in '28

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—The life of Albert Ottinger, former state attorney general and one-time Republican candidate for governor, is ended.

The 53-year-old son of a German immigrant who lost the governorship in 1928 to Franklin D. Roosevelt, died yesterday of a heart attack.

Ottinger, a state senator from 1916 to 1921, was an assistant U. S. attorney general in Harding's administration. He was elected state attorney general in 1924, and was re-elected in 1926. He won the Republican nomination for governor in 1928 and was defeated by Franklin Delano Roosevelt who went on to the presidency of the United States.

Ottinger, a graduate of New York University law school, became a Republican district leader in 1912, lost a campaign for a congressional seat two years later, but was elected to the State Senate in 1916.

State Attorney General

He remained in the Senate until 1921, then became assistant attorney general of the United States, and was elected state attorney general in 1924. In 1926, re-elected, he was the only Republican to win a state office and was nominated unanimously for governor two years later.

After the defeat by Roosevelt by a margin of 25,000 votes—Ottinger returned to private law practice. He had been in ill health for six months and confined to his home for some weeks prior to the heart attack, which caused his death.

Roosevelt Would Eliminate All Holding Companies But Does Not Say How Termination Would Be Achieved.

ALL LINES OF WORK

Chief Executive Emphatic in Applying Principle To All Lines of Business.

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP).—President Roosevelt said today he favored the elimination of all holding companies.

The President made the statement at a press conference in expressing unqualified opposition to the modification of the "death sentence in the utility holding company act which had been proposed by Wendell L. Wilkie, head of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, as one condition to an "understanding" with the administration.

The President did not indicate how he would terminate the holding company practice, but said remote control of local community banking should be ended as well as similar practices in the utility and other fields.

Asked if bankruptcy was the way out, the President replied in the negative and said there were various other ways.

Taxing Power?

He also was asked if the taxing power was to be utilized, answering that he had not reached that yet.

He replied with an emphatic affirmative when asked if he would extend his principle to all lines of business.

He referred to his Jackson Day dinner speech and stated that owners of $500,000 of private power securities were controlling a total of $1,000,000,000 of utility capital. That just can't go on, he said.

The President made his observations on holding companies in analyzing in detail, at the request of reporters, a memorandum left with him November 23 by Wilkie. The document gave the utility executive's position on what he believed the industry was willing to do if the government in turn did certain things.

As to Wilkie's contention that a large inflow of capital was needed to start an expansion program, the President said that was perfectly true of operating companies. Turning to Wilkie's expressed willingness to utilize for rate making the prudent investment valuation on properties built hereafter, the President said that was impossible.

Water and Wind

If the reproduction cost theory, now in general use, is wrong now, he declared, it also was wrong in the past and no moral right exists to forgive past crimes and leave what he termed water and wind in the existing capital structures.

Two wrongs don't make a right, he added. The President, further discussing the prudent investment angle, observed Wilkie made no mention of amortization of securities.

He said if securities of operating companies issued under rulings of the Supreme Court had been amortized the utilities would not be having much difficulty in their capital structures at the present time.

Wilkie's statement that the new valuation method also might disturb the capital market brought a comment that if a sinking fund had been set up on senior securities there would not have been any disturbance.

Regarding Wilkie's readiness to eliminate capital write-ups disclosed by the Federal Trade Commission, the President said he did not know enough about that to give an intelligent answer, but here again differentiation should be made between operating and holding companies.

Government Plants.

As to proposals that the federal government avoid duplication of private utilities, the President recalled a prior statement of his that the government now was operating power plants at a rate of only about 15 per cent of total power, area and population. The government recognizes the right of municipalities to put in their own power plants if the voters so determine, he said, adding that Wilkie even conceded that point.

On the point of public works grants to municipalities to establish power plants, he said the Supreme Court had made clear there was not much difference between federal aid for highways and federal aid for power.

A Sale for Bud Fete And Hardenbergh

The Hardenbergh Co., starting next Monday and continuing through Saturday, January 22, is conducting a Double Purpose January Event.

In addition to conducting its regular January furniture clearance during next week, the store will give one-tenth of its gross cash sales to the general committee of the Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival. The finance committee of the festival will check the sales of the company for the week.

Mr. Hardenbergh, when asked about the plan, which is explained more fully in an advertisement elsewhere in this issue of The Freeman, said: "I'm not a philanthropist but I do believe that the Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival is going to do more to add to the fame and fortune of Ulster county than anything ever attempted, and as I am not able to give privately as much to the promotion as I would like, I took this method, knowing that anything I might be able to give will be needed to help defray the expenses which the proper promotion of this great event will incur."

QUALIFY FOR POSTS IN CORRECTION DEPT.

Albany, Jan. 14 (Special).—Fifteen residents of Ulster county have been certified by the State Civil Service Commission as being among those qualified for positions as sergeant, in the employ of the State Correction Commission, at salaries averaging about $2,500 annually.

According to the commission's records, they are:

Ralph Smith, Rodney F. Terwilliger, Ray Crossman, and Joseph Carberry, of Nanapanoch.

Reed R. Wilkins, R. D. 1, John A. Chase, State Prison, Wallkill.

Lyle E. Harris, 16 Maple avenue; Herbert T. Nall, 15 Tuthill avenue; Raymond W. Burns, 26 Warren street; William H. Johnson, 13 Ellerslie street; Vincent S. Knoll, 137 Ulster street; Howard W. Rowan, 10 Tuthill avenue; Howard S. Hopkins, 22 Maple avenue; George E. Decker, 8 Burlington avenue, and Alfred G. Worken, 9 Essex street, all of Ellenville.

Playing Safe

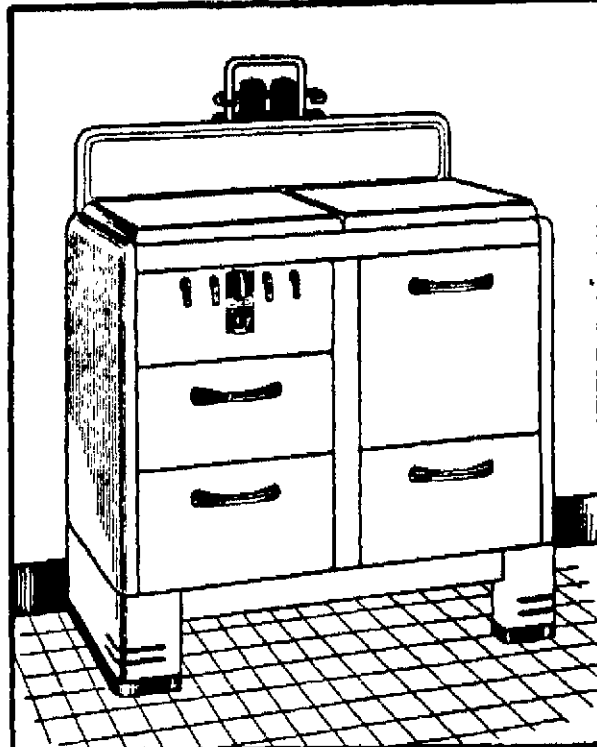

Ashland, Wis.—Donald Meyers and Tom Aston, pupils at the Ellis School, believe discretion is the better part of valor.

The boys were walking through a dense woods to school, swinging their lunch sacks, when out popped a big black bear. The bear ambled up and sniffed at the lunch. Donald and Tom aren't ones to argue about food with a bear. They dropped their bags and fled.

Ellnor Glyn, of "Three Weeks" fame, is about to publish another book. This one is not a thriller, according to advance notices, but "a treatise on youth by a woman who refuses to grow old."

HIGHLAND NEWS

School Trustees Held Meeting

Highland, Jan. 14.—At the meeting of the trustees of the Centralized district held at the school on Friday evening Philip T. Schantz, who has supervision of two outlying schools reported the grade for the stove in the Elting Corner's School had come and been installed. William H. Maynard also reported the coal had been placed in the high school during the holiday recess. The price of $10.25 a ton was $1 advance over the price in the spring.

A letter was read from E. D. Randall asking that the area about the new school be fenced off for the protection of the school children. The president, Mrs. Jesse D. Rose, stated that she had asked the principal to notify all the teachers to caution their pupils about approaching that portion of the grounds where the excavation is in progress.

A communication from Mrs. Frischer to John J. Gaffney relative to transportation of children from Little Italy. This caused some discussion and on a motion of A. W. Lent and seconded by C. I. Richards that Mr. Gaffney should inform Mrs. Frischer that children belonging to Oakes district should get transportation from there.

The secretary was empowered to inform Mrs. Ledgard Ball that the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Tamney had been filled before her letter was received.

Mr. Lent moved that bills audited by the finance committee be paid and president and clerk draw drafts for the same. This was seconded by Philip T. Schantz. Edward C. Smith, the architect, was asked to take the floor in a discussion of various angles of the new school. Mr. Smith was authorized to make the necessary arrangements with the contractor, V. J. Costanzo, Inc., for the removal of approximately 26 cubic yards of rock north of the excavation. The opinion of the architect being that this was the logical time for the work and not later when there would be a risk to building construction. Subsequent disposition of the matter showed the cost to the owner would be $125. This item to be charged to the improvement of new grounds. The members of the board were all present, with Principal A. H. Campbell and Architect Smith.

Mrs. C. I. Richards gave a tentative report of her activities during the past year both in school and town at the meeting Tuesday afternoon in the Health Center. She gave the dates of the coming clinics and the need of transportation for the Orthopedic clinic on February 7, also for someone to act as registrar. Mrs. Elmer Randall offered her services for that day. Thanks were given the U. D. Society for the more than 40 bed pads made by them. Mrs. Richards said that baby clothes were always needed. She is willing to again conduct classes in home nursing if 10 or more persons would make their willingness known to attend them. The classes would be for an hour or more either in the afternoon or evening, to suit the majority. The classes would be held on Tuesdays. Attending the meeting were: Mrs. Gay Bradt, Mrs. Elmer Randall, Mrs. Charles DuBois, Mrs. James Swift, Miss Eliza Raymond, and Mrs. Richards.

MODERN MOUNTAINEERSBarnhart Spoke To Business Men

"In the year 1925 the Y. M. C. A. secretary in Korea", stated B. Patrick Barnhart in his address last night at the first dinner of the newly formed "Y" Business Men's Social Club, "found that the important job to be done in the little villages was to show them how better to cultivate their fields and how to raise better farm animals". With this objective in mind we purchased chickens and pigs and immediately started a school in agriculture in one of the villages. A great deal of pioneering had to be done. We had overcome the prejudices of the villagers and finally when they realized that we were not after any gain for ourselves, they fell in gradually with the program. Today we have over 300 villagers with this program being carried out by volunteers and graduates of our schools in Seoul Y. M. C. A.

"Only one boy in every five is able in Korea to receive any formal education and a pitiful handful of girls ever has the advantages. Having received a government permit, because all schools are under the direction of the government, we started with our volunteer Y. M. C. A. friends trade schools in training the youth in the making of leather shoes as most of the villagers wear sandals with rice straw as the material, brass pounding, wood joining and carpentry and photography. Upon my return in two months I am taking back equipment for an automobile school and will also plan some clerical subjects."

The remainder of his address was on the same subject delivered before the Kiwanis Club.

The meeting was presided over by Clarence Wolfersteig who states that another meeting of the club will be held Thursday, February 11, at the Y. M. C. A.

The club members and guests were treated to a fine musical program by Florence Sherritt and Shirley Amarello, pupils of the A. B. Gilman and the Y. M. C. A. School of Guitar Instruction.

The dinner was served by the following ladies of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary: Mrs. William Longyear, Mrs. Clarence Dumm, Mrs. Maxwell Taylor, Mrs. T. Slater, Mrs. Daniel Secors and Mrs. George DuBois, Mrs. Pearl Carey and Mrs. B. Richter.

Redeemer Church
Annual Meeting Held on Thursday

The annual congregational meeting of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer was held Thursday evening. Election to various officers was held; reports of the parish organizations were read and received; business relative to the work for the coming year was deliberated. Pastor Gaensle made a survey of congregational activities during the year and emphasized the note of achievement. The first evidence of achievement had to do with the Fortieth Anniversary Improvement Program which was completed during 1937 and which included a roof made leak-proof, indirect lighting for the Sunday school, new chairs for the Sunday school, repainting the Sunday school, new boiler, automatic stoker, extensive repairs to the church, redecorating the church, new lighting for the church with the stalle control, the organ rebuilt. The cost of these improvements totaled more than $11,000 of which nearly $5,000 was raised within the year.

Events held in celebration of the Fortieth Anniversary Improvement program were the dedication of the Sunday school rooms in April and the rededication of the church early in October. The latter extended over a period of one week and was featured by special services and a congregational banquet. Due to the fact that the church was in the fortieth year of its existence two conventions of the Lutheran Church-at-large used it for headquarters in 1937; the first of which was the Eastern Conference of the New York Synod, held in the spring and the second, the Women's Missionary Society of the Eastern Conference. The success of the improvement program lay in the cooperation which the members of the congregation and the special committees gave. More than 60 parishioners accepted posts of responsibility to assist in the development of the program.

Achievement was indicated in other directions. From the viewpoint of parish activities specific items were mentioned. The Christmas pageant was so thorough that two presentations were given. The Christmas dawn service witnessed a new departure in the form of a candle-lighting ceremony. In the spring the Capella Choir from Hartwick College in Oneonta was entertained. The church basketball team occupied the position of runner-up in the basketball league last season. The Men's Club basketball team did equally well in the basketball league. From a financial viewpoint, all bills were paid and the budget was balanced.

From a statistical viewpoint, the communicant membership registered a decided increase. There were nine baptisms, four marriages and 31 new members added to the roll, of which 21 were admitted by rite of confirmation, nine by letter of transfer and one by renewal of faith. The growth was overshadowed by 29 deaths, of whom 17 were members and 12 were non-members.

The congregation voted to continue in force the penny bank collections for a period of three years in order that the indebtedness which was incurred as a result of the improvement program might be reduced.

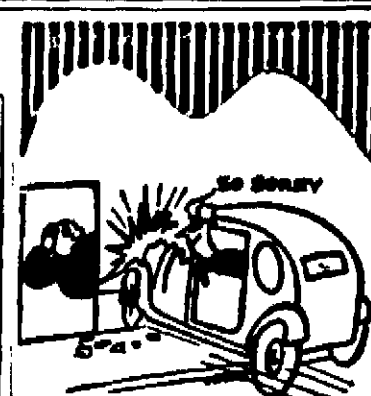

The following were elected to the official church board: Walter Higgins, Ernest Hopponer, Walter Hutt and William Miller. Officers for the coming year are: President, William Miller; treasurer, Walter Hutt; financial secretary, Alfred Messinger. Montgomery Bailey was elected delegate to the 1938 convention of the New York Synod to be held in Rochester; Louis Schwartz was named as alternate. Harry Hutton was made delegate to the Eastern Conference convention in Middleburgh and Samuel Messinger, alternate.

Frost often causes a considerable amount of soil damage. In freezing weather, particles of the surface soil on bare ground are often lifted on top of needle-like frost crystals which grow up from the surface of the ground. On fairly steep slopes the crystals have a tendency to break off near the base as they melt, and the

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A GARDEN?

WATCH THIS LOVELY GARDEN GROW
FORGET ABOUT YOUR WINTER BLUES

A Terrarium Needs Few Waterings

Now, while Old Man Winter walls outside, enjoy a lovely, gay indoor garden.

Thanks to the lavish way plants grow in a terrarium, you can have such a garden quickly—colorful with blue African violets, graceful with tropical palms and ferns like the terrarium in the picture.

What's the magic secret of a terrarium? Its glass walls and top protect the little seedlings and cuttings from drafts. The air is always evenly warm and moist. What excuse is there for a plant not to do its best?

If you decide to landscape your terrarium you can have grand fun with miniature firs and velvety mosses. Or you can be exotic with cacti. Or—and this shows you can take a dare—why not raise orchids? Lots of people do in little window-sill terrariums—and have good luck with them.

To make your new glass garden, take an old fish bowl or almost any other kind of glass container. Fill the bottom with pebbles, cover with fibre or garden loam, tuck in your plants, put on a glass top—and watch the miracle unfold.

A handsome companion for your terrarium is a flower stand with a rosette blooming begonia and a graceful fern. Neither needs much sunlight. To be different—try the fascinating staghorn fern in the picture.

In our separate booklet, SUCCESS WITH HOUSE PLANTS AND FLOWERS, are complete directions for making terrariums, dish gardens. Pointers on bulbs, vines, ferns, flowering plants help you to have flowers, handsome foliage plants all year.

Send 15c for our booklet, SUCCESS WITH HOUSE PLANTS AND FLOWERS, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Chinese Elm—The Speed Tree

(By The Master Gardener)

Do you need some shade around your home in double quick time? A fast growing tree that has none of the undesirable root characteristics of other fast-growing trees like the Poplars?

Then by all means plant a Chinese Elm. It is beautiful—as graceful as the Cut-Leaf Birch. It is hardy as an Oak. Its rapid growth is remarkable. It will withstand city soot and gases.

It is suitable for street planting, for windbreaks, as a screen planting, or as an individual specimen on the lawn. It attains a height of about 45 feet.

Here are some actual figures on growth recorded: A 6-ft. Elm in 4 years attained a height of 30 feet; a 4-ft. tree in five years attained a height of 40 feet; a young tree (exact height at planting not stated) in three years attained a height of 28 feet. These are actual cases recorded by amateur gardeners.

The Chinese Elm is adapted to culture throughout the United States. And another point in its favor: It is surprisingly drought-resistant. Of a group of trees consisting of a weeping willow, Lombardy Poplar, Cut-Leaf Birch and Chinese Elm, planted in fall, 1935, the Chinese Elm was the only one that survived the severe drought of 1936. If you are think-

Sister-Team Wins Gardening Title

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 14.—A sister-team takes 1937 honors as New York state's 4-H club garden champions, while a boy becomes the state's 4-H champion potato grower.

The girls are Zelda, 17, and Louise Mullen, 16, of Stafford, 4 years attained a height of 30 feet; a 4-ft. tree in five years attained a height of 40 feet; a young tree (exact height at planting not stated) in three years attained a height of 28 feet. These are actual cases recorded by amateur gardeners.

On a half-acre plot the girls grew 26 kinds of vegetables, even harvesting 10 watermelons. They had 84 bunches of asparagus, six bushels of beets, 200 heads of lettuce, four bushels of parsnips, 360 peppers, 200 bunches of radishes, 35 dozen sweet corn, 15 bushels of tomatoes, and good yields among the other crops.

The garden was valued at $147.50. Adding $24.10 in prizes and deducting $73.92 for expenses (the girls had costs figured to a penny) left them a net value of $97.68.

identification like that. Before we accept, I want to see her myself, and get a written identification over her signature.

Read It or Not
Thomas Parr, of Shropshire, England, married a second time at the age of 120 years.

The old man was, at least, obedient: Rural Father—Why do you spend so much time on the crease of your pants?
Collected Son—It is very important, Dad, not to wear baggy trousers.

Rural Father—Important, is it? Did you ever see a statue of a famous man who didn't wear baggy trousers?

You can get people to give three cheers for a thing that you can't get them to give anything else for.

The kind old lady had just used the public telephone for the first time, and had given the operator quite a bit of trouble. After she had finished her conversation she called the exchange:
Kind Old Lady—I'm very sorry to have given you so much trouble, Miss, so I'm putting another nickel in the slot for yourself.

A good way to pile up enemies is to give people what you think they want instead of what they ask for.

People don't hate you for doing them a favor. It is because you keep reminding them of it.

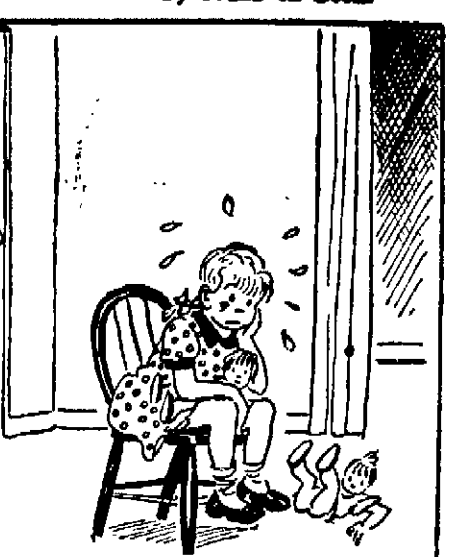

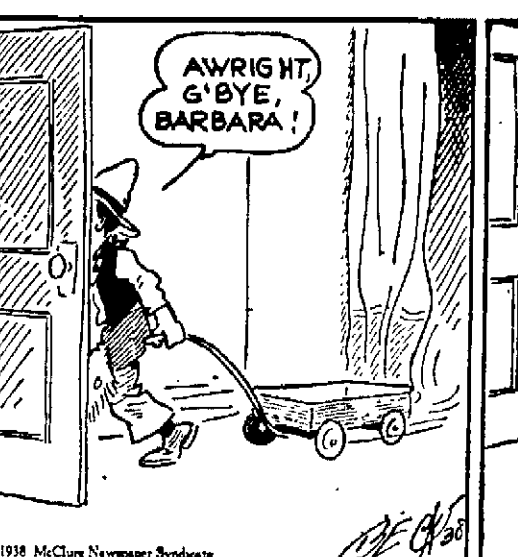

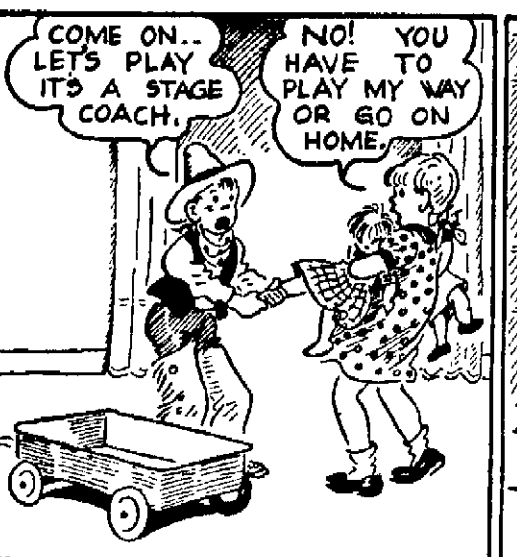

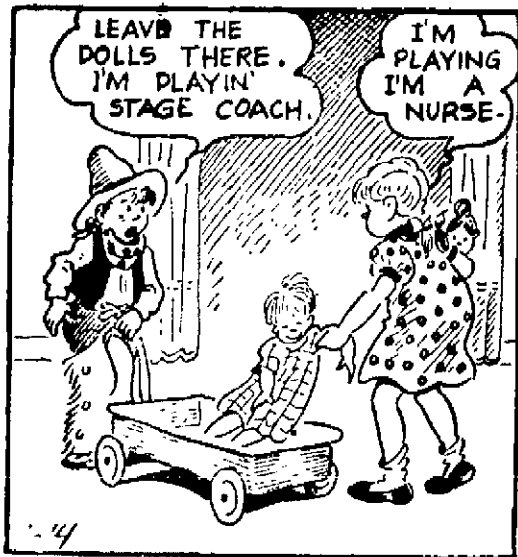

A man went wearily into a barber shop and slumped down in a chair:
Man—Give me a shave.
Barber—You are too far down in the chair for a shave. Rattle up a little please.

Man—All right, just let me be. Give me a haircut.

God Grant Me—
God grant that life shall bring to me a harvest rich in golden deeds.

And grant that somehow I may serve in helping those in distress.

God grant that with a cheerful smile I may allay another's fears.

And give me kindly hands to wipe away my weeping sister's tears. I would not serve a multitude nor touch the millions on the way.

But grant to me that happiness of helping those I meet each day.

We'll take a "shot" at the banker today:
Wife—Hello, darling, did you have a hard day at the bank?

Banker—Hey, who are you?
Wife—Oh, we've gone through that every day for nine years. I'm your wife.

Banker—Have you means of identification?
Wife—Yes, here's my signature. You can compare it with the one in your file.

Banker—Hm! Looks a little different to me, but I'll take a chance. Any news?
Wife—Yes, Ruth Higgins called up. They want us to go over there for dinner on Thursday.

Banker—Hm. How do you know it was Ruth Higgins?
Wife—Why, she said so, of course. And besides, I recognized her voice.

Banker—Oh, she said so, and you recognized her voice? Now isn't that dandy? And you expect me to take a chance of getting mixed up in my dinner on Friday

Many Kinds of Sponges, Suitable for All Uses

There are more than eighty varieties of usable sponges, and thousands of useless ones. The kind used in the bath is known as wool. Another sort, called velvet, is used to wash automobiles, and in Holland cows just before they are milked. The reef sponge is used in gas masks and in hospitals, and shipped in enormous quantities to Japan. Englishmen use this variety after shaving. The grass sponge is the cheapest grade. The hard head is used by tailors and potters, and the yellow sponge by painters.

Sponge fishermen locate their prey through a "water glass," which is an inverted bucket with glass bottom that smooths out the ripples when it is held on top of the water. The fishermen pull the sponges out of the sea with a pronged staff. When taken from the mud, the sponges are put in keels, where they are kept until the flesh decomposes, when it is beaten out with sticks.

At Nassau the sponges are taken to shorehouses, where they are sorted and graded, trimmed and pressed. Some are dyed and perfumed. When royal persons visit Nassau they are given rose-scented pink sponges.

There is a place in the Bahamas called the Mud, unromantically and humorously named, for the water is clear as crystal. It is from the Mud that the sponges come.

"Kitchen Cabinet," Made Up of Jackson's Friends

The name "kitchen cabinet" was applied by John Randolph, of Roanoke, to a small group of intimate friends of President Jackson. Although these men held no important offices at the time, notes a writer in the Indianapolis News, they seemed to influence the President's political actions more than did his official cabinet.

The moving spirit of the "kitchen cabinet" was Amos Kendall of Kentucky, who was fourth auditor of the treasury, although he later became postmaster general. Other members of this coterie were Gen. Duff Green, editor of the United States Telegraph, the administration organ at Washington; Maj. William B. Lewis of Tennessee, second auditor of the treasury; Isaac Hill, editor of the New Hampshire Patriot, and later Francis P. Blair, Sr., who was editor of the Globe, which in 1851 superseded the United States Telegraph as the administration organ at the capital.

It is said that when these men visited President Jackson they went through the back or kitchen door in order to avoid public notice. Randolph declared that this little coterie decided the great affairs of state of intimate friends of the President while the members of the official cabinet were asleep.

Air Spaces in Eggs

The air spaces in eggs are supposed to aid in the development of the embryo chick. The chick makes use of the air in this pocket during the brief period between the time when it begins to breathe and the time when it is strong enough to break through the shell with its beak. This air sac enlarges materially during incubation, and in a normal egg the chick at hatching time always has its head pointing toward the large end of the egg and the air space. It is the opinion of the United States bureau of animal industry that the air sac is formed by the contraction of the contents of the egg immediately after it is laid. The temperature of an ordinary hen's body is about 107 degrees Fahrenheit, and it is reasonable to suppose that as soon as an egg is laid the yolk and white contract somewhat. Because of the peculiar shape of the egg the air space is nearly always formed at the large end. Now and then it occurs on the side, but never at the small end.

The known incunabula represent about 35,000 editions and include products of such famous early printers as Gutenberg, Jensen, Caxton and Aldus Manutius. Notable collections in the United States are in the library of congress, Pierpont Morgan library, New York; John Carter Brown library and Annamary Brown memorial, Providence, and the Huntington library at San Marino, Calif.

Arizona Crater a Wonder

Near Winslow, Ariz., the great meteor crater is an object of unflagging interest. This tremendous hole, a mile in diameter, was formed by the impact of the head of a small comet that plunged into the earth ages ago and now lies buried more than a thousand feet beneath the surface. The bottom of the crater is about 50 stories deep, and around the rim is an even hill as white as snow, that indicates the intense heat that scorched the earth all around as the flaming comet struck.

Cashin Named on State Committee

Corporation Counsel John M. Cashin was notified Thursday afternoon that he had been appointed a member of the General Legislative Committee of the State Mayors' Conference. This committee meets in Albany once a week while the legislature is in session to study bills submitted that would affect first, second and third class cities and villages. This legislative committee then submits its findings to the state legislative committees having the proposed bills in charge.

Mayor C. J. Heiseleman, who was recently elected vice president of the State Mayors' Conference said that he was delighted to learn that Mr. Cashin had been made a member of the general legislative committee of the Mayors' Conference as his legal training and experience would make him a valuable member of the committee.

Albany, Jan. 14 (special)—Assemblyman Thomas A. Leahy, Republican, of Lake Placid, has introduced in the legislature a bill authorizing the State Conservation Commissioner to charge for the use of camp sites in the Catskill and Adirondack state parks. The measure, which was sent to the assembly ways and means committee to await further consideration, provides that the commissioner shall fix uniform charges, and shall not charge more than will reimburse the state for the services and facilities provided by it. An appropriation of $8,000 is contained in the bill, to be used by the conservation department for expenses.

in power for a year and Chautemps held the premiership for seven months, lacking eight days.

Radical Socialists, midway between Conservatives and Leftists, and Socialists, favoring moderate Marxism, were in both cabinets. Communists gave parliamentary support.

The next move is "up to the president, not to me," Chautemps said after leaving the presidential palace this morning.

"I hope things will be arranged as quickly as possible in an atmosphere of calm and civic peace essential to the safety of the currency and serenity of the country," Socialist resentment over Chautemps' admonition to communists to vote as they pleased on confidence in his regime led to the decision by Socialist Ministers to resign.

Vice Premier Blum, roused from sleep at 4 a. m. sent Chautemps a letter avowing that socialists had endeavored to keep the People's Front "intact around you," but that incidents of the parliamentary session "oblige us to give you our resignation."

Chautemps had endeavored to win labor and employers to a code of industrial peace, which would bar sit-in strikes and provide for discharge of workers only with union approval.

Bud Festival Prospectus Out

The prospectus for Ulster county's first apple blossom festival to be held on May 6, 7 and 8, has been prepared and printed and a copy is being mailed to every member of the various committees having charge of the arrangements for the festival.

The proposed festival embodies one of the most elaborate plans ever launched to publicize apples, says the prospectus. This in conjunction with the work of the New York and New England Institutes. It will directly benefit many citizens, both from an economic and from a health standpoint. Incidentally, the multitude of activities will attract thousands upon thousands of people to Ulster county and acquaint them with the historic and dramatic importance and beautiful scenery of this area.

The prospectus calls attention to the fact that the opening day will be known as "World's Fair Day"; the second day will be Governor's Day, and the closing day will be Church Day.

The prospectus outlines briefly the duties assigned to the various committees that have been appointed, and states that suggestions are always in order. As the result of one suggestion steps have already been taken to secure a Kingston post office cancellation stamp calling attention to the festival.

Old Mayan Customs and Costumes in Guatemala

One of the customs of Guatemala is the holding of frequent fiestas, when whole communities participate in some religious ceremony and then relax into merriment. One of these celebrations is the Fiesta de los Voladores, or fliers, which takes place each year in Chichicastenango, an Indian town in upland Guatemala.

This ceremony has been observed for thousands of years and represents the descent to the earth of the messengers of the Chacs, who are the Mayan gods. A ladder-like mast, made from tree trunks lashed together, is erected in front of the church in the town's plaza. Two fliers in costumes and masks climb to the top and seat themselves in the looped ends of two ropes which hang from a revolving frame. Swinging out from the mast, they descend in wide circles as the ropes unwind from the top until they reach the ground.

Market days also provide a colorful spectacle. Natives from many miles around bring in produce and handicraft to the cities on certain days each week. At Solola, above Lake Atitlan, the market is held on Fridays, and at Chichicastenango the market days when 5,000 natives assemble in their tribal costumes, are Thursdays and Sundays.

The men wear aprons and woolen breeches, curved and slit at the knee, with embroidered pocket flaps and boleros harking back to the Andalusian conquistadores. The members of one tribe wear full, white trousers and aprons in contrasting color; those of the next will have costumes utterly different. The women all wear blouses called "huipiles" and skirts with contrasting sashes of brilliant pattern, yet each is quite distinctive and typical of the woman's village.

How Soldier Read Bible From His Playing Cards

The story of a soldier reading the Bible from a pack of playing cards follows:

A soldier is said to have gone to church without his Bible. He was observed toying with a deck of cards, and when arrested described each card to the magistrate by allusion to Biblical characters, explaining the cards served as a Bible as follows:

Ace, there is only one God; deuce, Father and Son; trey, Trinity; four, the Evangelists; five, the Wise Virgins; six, heaven and earth made in six days; seven, He rested on the seventh day; eight, the eight righteous persons saved during the flood; nine, the nine lepers cleansed by the Saviour; ten, the Commandments; king, God of Heaven; queen, Queen of Sheba who visited Solomon. "And what is the knave?" asked the magistrate. And the prisoner answered, "The greatest knave I know is the policeman who brought me here."

"He may not be the biggest knave," commented the magistrate, "but he is the biggest fool." "There are 52 cards," continued the soldier, "the number of weeks in the year; there are 12 picture cards, the number of months; four suits for the seasons; 13 cards to the suit, the number of weeks in the quarter; so you see the cards are alike a Bible and an almanac."

Dogs Traveled on Ice

Arctic sled dogs pull sleds over all types of country. There are gravel and rock stretches swept absolutely clear of snow, ice caps and yawning descents. They pull heavy sleighs through the bush country, harnessed two by two on a main line, or across windswept sea ice in fan shape formation from the main trace connecting the heavy sleds. They travel barefoot, or moccasins shod over bare sea ice to protect their feet which would otherwise have the skin torn off by the extreme cold of the ice. They must even fight sand storms in the extreme north where the fiercest winds sweep island shores clear of snow and choke dogs and men with stinging sand. The Arctic sled dog has great endurance. Even though those dogs may not have been fed for days they can still travel far distances over ice and snow.

Panama Cities Founded Several Centuries Ago

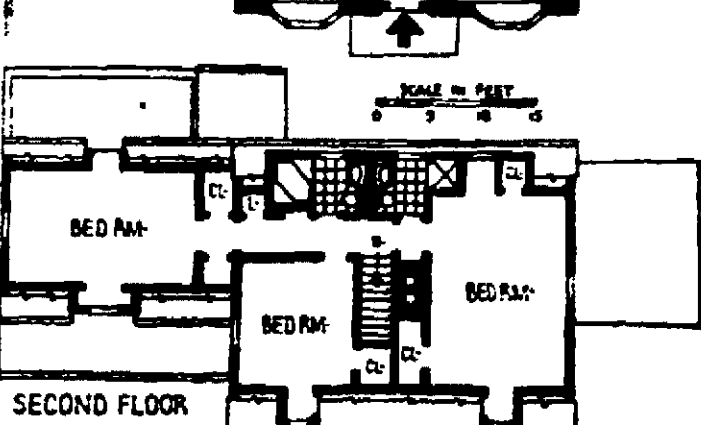

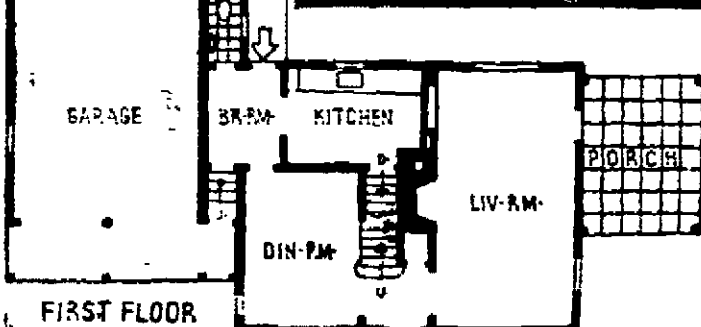

Cristobal, Canal Zone, Atlantic port of entry to that strip of leased territory across the narrow part of the republic of Panama, is the gateway to a scene that dates back through the centuries. Panama City and Colon are ancient and colorful, and Cristobal and Balboa are modern and military.

Panama City and Colon are not outgrowths of the building of the canal. They are cities founded four centuries ago, the terminals of a paved causeway built to carry the unrecorded riches of the conquistadores, with a legend of pirates, buccaners, and the freebooters of the Spanish Main. A kaleidoscope of nations, they owe their atmosphere to a commerce originating in the Fifteenth century. The parade of nations began with the Spaniards and negro slaves, Inca chiefs and native Indians, and was carried on by the English buccaners, the French corsairs, the forty-niners, Hindus, Chinese, and Arabs. Descendants of these early merchants pass through the streets, displaying their wares in open shops that give the thoroughfares the atmosphere of an oriental bazaar.

Balboa and Cristobal contrast sharply with Panama City and Colon in all respects except natural tropic beauty. They are a result of the canal, with wharves, customs houses, drydocks, administration buildings, rows of houses and a note of military efficiency.

Changes in United States Capitol In 1964 congress transformed the old house wing of the Capitol into Statuary hall. On December 2, 1963, a patriotic crowd assembled to witness the placing of Thomas Crawford's Statue of Freedom on the top of the dome. When the field battery fired the national salute at noon the Capitol was complete in its main lines. Subsequently minor renovations were made to permit the introduction of steam heating (1865); elevators (1874); fireproofing (1881); electric lighting (1882); modern drainage system (1893); and air conditioning (1937).

A Squared Stone Front Gives An Original Touch

The eye-catching feature of this arrangement provides extra space at the rear which is divided into a service porch, lavatory and breakfast room. The second floor plan boasts two baths. The house was designed by Architect Randolph Evans. The plan was chosen by The Architectural Forum, 135 E. 42nd St.

Star of Destiny Rules Japanese

United States—a conquest of only a few months.

Declaration of Purpose. In 1854 there appeared in the Bay of Yedo six black ships, and shores were dropped and gunboats opened. From the mast of these vessels floated the Stars and Stripes—it was an expedition under command of Commodore Matthew Calbraith Perry. Frightened Japanese, looking down from their defenses at the stern ships, sent word to their emperor that an enemy was anchored on their shores. Perry and his aides landed, negotiated a treaty with the Sun Emperor, and the Japanese king issued a proclamation, now called a declaration of purpose in effect that Perry's ships and men came as enemies and went away as friends, that the Japanese people must learn from these visitors how they lived, and must follow their example.

Five Great Families. Nippon at the time of Perry's arrival was largely agricultural, dominated by five great families, who held the population of the island in serfdom. At the command of the emperor these powerful families turned their attention to industry and in a few years modern factories were built and made ready for operation, only to find that Japan had no source of raw materials except fish and lumber. Consequently the Japanese turned to other countries and made huge purchases, much of it from the United States. Trade with America grew until Japan now buys only slightly less than the entire British Empire. With cheap labor the finished products were sent to the ports of the world for distribution, and the Japanese found they could undersell most other nations by 50 per cent. The manufacturing nations seeing an acute situation, insofar as their own industries were concerned, erected tariff barriers and then the Japanese found out two things: They had neither raw materials nor a market for their industrial output. Industry and the promise of the more abundant life had failed.

Reason for Military. Meanwhile the army and navy had, in accordance with the Sun Emperor's wish, studied history. The military found that both Britain and the United States had made conquests and created markets. So the young Japanese seeking a better life turned to the military, which promised a market for products, work and return for services. The military looked across from Nippon to find a market and just across the sea lay their customer, the Chinese, 500,000,000 strong. Guided by the star of destiny in every Japanese breast, the army and navy moved to carry out plans and realize promises.

Not industry alone caused the action against China. On the island of Nippon live 23,000,000 people, and the island although not large, is only one-third tillable. Japanese, hence, are crowded for space and expansion became necessary to this nation that increases its population at the rate of 1,900,000 a year.

Crowded Provinces. China is vast and offers this outlet, but the conquests so far have been in the crowded provinces, where population problems are as acute as in Japan. Whether the expansion will continue to the vast sparsely settled wastes or be stopped in the northeast provinces may mean victory or failure to the military's promises. The future is extremely uncertain, said the speaker, because if the army and navy fail to realize their promises, Japanese youth will turn to another type of leadership.

Religion also plays a part in the far eastern picture. The Japanese religion is an old one, it has gods for every purpose. If terrible engines of war are made and used, there is a god who will justify their use. No matter what program, some god will find it favorable.

Against this belief comes Christianity—promoting universal brotherhood, love and peace. Only one-tenth of one per cent of the Japanese believe Christianity, but it is becoming a factor in the situation. If the military fails

(two courses are open, Communism and Christianity. The speaker thought that perhaps the first named would be tried first and that that fails Christianity will have its chance to bring to the youth of the orient the fulfillment of cherished dreams, whose realization has so far failed.

Use of Dolls Dates Far Back Into Earliest Days

The use of dolls—as playthings, ornaments, and symbols of religion and mysticism—dates back to antiquity. Historians have failed to unearth any period in which there were no dolls. Early Oriental mythology abounds with stories of gayly-decorated figures used in religious rites, observes a writer in the Detroit News.

In the Orange Free State in Africa a girl receives a doll when she reaches maturity and keeps it until she has a child of her own. Egyptians throw a life-size doll in the Nile when it rises each year. Chinese mothers hang a doll in front of the house when a child is ill. Syrian maidens place a doll in the window to notify young blades of the village that they are ready and willing to take a husband. In Japan the annual Feast of the Dolls is a gay and impressive ceremony in which hundreds of thousands of children and grown-ups participate.

Psychologists say dolls are useful, not only to amuse, but to educate and to develop imagination and the parental instinct in children. Dolls, they say, are helpful to little boys as well as girls, and any boy under six years old need not fear being called a sissy if he loves and plays with dolls.

Dolls of cave-dwellers were crudely fashioned of mud, stones or bits of wood. Archeologists have found them in the earliest primitive dwellings, often lying by the side of the remains of children. Through the centuries dolls have taken better form. European craftsmen of the Middle Ages developed great skill in making dolls from wax. Later dolls were made of plaster, easily breakable.

Fogs, Mists, Are Clouds

Fogs, or mists, are really clouds close to or in contact with the ground. The conditions necessary are the presence of dust and water vapor in the atmosphere and the falling of the temperature of the air below a certain point. When this happens each particle of dust receives a coating of moisture, and mist is formed. This is white. In its early stages mist easily dissolves if the temperature rises slightly. If there is smoke about, each drop of moisture acquires a covering of oily film. This hinders evaporation and also gives the mist, now fog, its dark color and unpleasant flavor. Extensive fogs also occur where currents of air of different temperatures meet. This, says London Answers Magazine, is the reason why the region around Newfoundland is the foggiest in the world. There the air warmed by the Gulf Stream meets the cold Labrador current.

First Color of French Flag

While it is not usual to associate red with the French monarchy, it was really the first color of the king's flag, called the oriflamme. It is only because red was also adopted by the English king that the French gave it up for blue. It was under the blue flag that Huguenots came to America first as loyal subjects of the king of France. However, the red flag was preserved on the galleys of the Mediterranean fleet where terrible suffering was endured by the unhappy men who could not understand the injustice of the king.

Wreck of the "Griffin" According to Farmer's History of Detroit, the "Griffin," the first sailing ship on the Great Lakes, weighed between 45 and 60 tons and was armed with five cannon. She was built by La Salle at the mouth of Cayuga creek near Niagara in the spring of 1679 and was launched in May of that year. After several short trial trips, she started her first real voyage on August 7, 1679, with 32 persons aboard. She reached Detroit on August 10 and continued through the lakes to Washington Island in Lake Michigan. After taking on a load of furs, she sailed on September 18 and was never seen again, but portions of the wreck were found among the islands at the northern end of the lake.

Thought Precious Stones

Protection From Disease

In earlier times precious stones were supposed to have supernatural and medicinal powers. Certain stones gave protection from sorcerers or vampires, disease, poison or evil spirits. Others put a spell on enemies, enabled their owners to see distant events, cure illnesses, and look into the past or future. They were also believed to insure good luck.

Practically the only ideas of this kind surviving in Britain, says Pearson's London Weekly, are that pearls bring tears, that opals are unlucky and lose their brilliance while the person wearing them is ill.

Many a French bride will not wear pearls on her wedding day, believing them to be omens of tears to come.

There is an Egyptian belief that the surest way to test an emerald is to offer it to a snake; if it is genuine the snake will at once begin to lick it with its flicking tongue.

The ancient scientist Cardanus advised people to wear jet to avoid nightmares; and Albertus Magnus declared that the emerald split as soon as it touched the skin of an adulterer.

The French used to believe that sapphires soaked in vinegar made a wonderful remedy for fevers, and that powdered sapphires cured hoarse voices. A toad, they thought, lost its transparency when brought into contact with poisons. To this day, the Burmese have the same name, chin, for arsenic and diamond, believing both to be deadly poisons.

The diamond was said in medieval Europe to have sex; the male stones glittered more brightly than the females, and brought higher prices. There is a saying in India that it is strengthening to wear one.

America of Present Day

Harks Back to W. Indies

It may seem illogical to say that America of today had its origin in the West Indies. But such is a fact, asserts a writer in the Chicago Tribune, and that is why many people visit the islands of the Caribbean.

It is easy to picture the buccanniers and their victims, and the wild debauchery in which the loot was spent. Those bearded pirates were the gunmen of their period and they didn't bother much about "Hands up!" or "Don't move or I'll shoot!" They began to shoot as soon as they got into range. Hundreds of millions of gold were collected by these freebooters, and much of it is buried somewhere between the tropic of Cancer and the equator.

Mention of the West Indies brings to mind a flood of recollections—pictures of Columbus, the discoverer; De Leon, who loved Porto Rico so much that he sought the fountain of youth so that he might grow young again to enjoy all the longer its beauties; De Soto, who built the old fort which stands in Havana, and who sleeps in the bottom of the Mississippi river, which he discovered; Cortez, who found a splendid civilization in Mexico and wrecked it for the sake of gold; Balboa, the stowaway, who discovered the Pacific ocean; Pizarro, who spent a dozen or more years in his efforts to reach Peru so that he might rob the Incas of their vast wealth; Morgan, who sacked and burned Panama after his men had obtained its treasures; Drake, the privateer, who was just a pirate with a new name; Raleigh, who popularized tobacco and the potato; Josephine, the little girl from Martinique who became the wife of Napoleon and thus the empress of France.

Hollywood

Sight And Sound

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—John Carradine, the lean and slimy villain of many pictures these past two years, is going to shock those fans who love to hate him.

In "Benefits Forged" Carradine is seen as the traditionally kindly and beneficent Abraham Lincoln, and all because Clarence Brown saw him at lunch.

This director is a confirmed lunch-time caster of his pictures. More than a few players, calmly sitting in the studio commissary, have won or lost important roles because Clarence Brown's roving eyes studied them there.

"I can see the actors there as their natural selves," he says, "and that's the only way to judge what sort of performance may be in them."

Versatility In Villains

Observing Carradine's mannerisms, at the luncheon table, Brown decided that here was his Lincoln. It was as simple as that. But, he elaborates:

"There are two kinds of casting, traditional and revolutionary. Hollywood usually clings to the traditional. For instance, John Miljan is invariably cast as a villain. I cast him in a sympathetic role because, after all, if a man can act a good villain he can act anything else equally well."

And he feels the same way about stories. This "Benefits Forged," tale of pioneer days in Ohio, he purchased personally 20 years ago. At that time, current standards of what constituted film entertainment did not inspire other than his own faith in the yarn. But he was content to wait—on the theory that a good story is a good story and therefore can be filmed successfully.

Specialist In Dying

Familiar with death in all its forms—for the movies—Ricardo Cortez is looking toward life as a director.

In half the 260 pictures Cortez has made in his 16 years before the camera, he has played the villain, and in nearly as many films he has met violent death. The hangman's noose, the electric chair are but routine tools of his trade, varied occasionally by such original finishes as a dunking in acid.

Four Important Groups

Form Parakeet Family

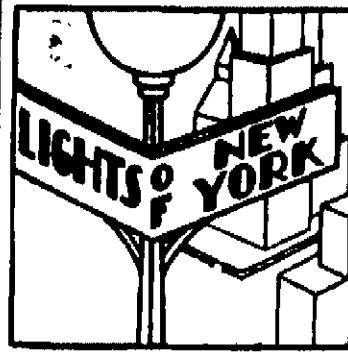

Parakeets are classified with the parrots from which they differ as a group mainly in their general small size, and in having longer tails, whether pointed or rounded, than the rather short and squarish tails of the parrot members of this family.

There exist four important groups of these birds. The group best known to this country, states a writer in the Montreal Herald, contains the conures, or American tropical parakeets, of which about 30 species are listed in books, all prevailing green, with brown faces and throats, and long-tailed; sometimes these may be taught to say a few words. A second group includes the ringnecks, most of the 25 or so species of which are marked by a collar of distinct color behind the head. All of these are natives of southern Asia or of Africa.

Of the third group, or true lovebirds, some ten kinds are commonly imported, all of African origin. A fourth group comprises the br-ad-tailed "grass" parakeets of Australia, of which the only well-known species brought to America is the popular budgerigar, or shell parakeet, frequently called "love-bird."

After all, parakeets are only small parrots, and in nature live virtually in the same way.

As custodian of the Catskill village clock—keeping it wound and cleaned for a year—Horace Willard received a total of $29. But that was 100 years ago.

By L. L. STEVENSON

It wasn't so long ago that Benjamin Winter, rather short and pudgy and wearing wrinkled clothes and scuffed shoes, was worth $27,000,000. His real estate firm had holdings with an estimated value of $50,000,000. Four hundred million dollars had passed through his hands. Known as the man who "transformed Fifth avenue," he paid W. K. Vanderbilt $4,000,000 for his graystone chateau; Vincent Astor, $2,700,000 for the famous Astor mansion at Sixty-fifth street; Arthur Curtiss James, $4,000,000 for an apartment house at 968 Fifth avenue. When Winter bought, the wreckers came. Mansions on which millions had been expended were razed ruthlessly and new structures took their places. It has been said of Winter that he knows Fifth avenue as a man knows his back yard or a guide knows the trails of the woods. To deal in millions was not at all difficult for him—he merely forgot the ciphers.

Winter reached the peak of his fortune a little more than a quarter of a century after he had come to this country as an immigrant boy from Poland with a cash capital of two worn $1 bills. In the old country, his family had had money and he had attended art school. When relatives asked his occupation, he replied, "Painter." So he was promptly apprenticed to a house painter. Having learned that trade, he became a contractor and from contractor graduated into the real estate business. At first, his operations were modest. He bought and sold updown and gradually worked into the west side. Then came Fifth avenue. By that time, he had established his credit. He didn't need capital, merely credit and mortgages. In addition, he had to know where to sell at a profit. Thus, the millions.

How the former immigrant boy acquired the Astor mansion is an illustration of Winter's shrewdness. The property was not for sale. Astor didn't need the money. That didn't discourage Winter. He put up the argument that mansions belonged to the gay '90s. That difficulties in obtaining and maintaining a staff of servants were increasing constantly. That parties were no longer held in homes but in hotels. Astor paid no attention. Then Winter showed him that as he occupied the mansion only about 30 days a year, it cost him $40,000 a night to sleep there. Astor sold.

Benjamin Winter, fifty-six years old, his hair thinning, his shoes and suits more shabby than 10 years ago, now lives in a rented Riverside drive apartment. His daughter, a Hunter college student, works in a department store Saturdays to earn $2 a week. Recently, Winter went into bankruptcy court. His debts were $8,500,000. His assets, those ciphers he had disregarded in the past. Freed from the insistence of creditors, he believes he can come back. More millions, he holds, are to be made in the further development of the mid-town section of New York.

Speaking of millions, there were those three youths who tried to gain admission to the Paramount theater without paying the price. They climbed a lamppost, got onto the marquee and opened a window. One crawled through and presumably saw the show. The second one upset and broke a $250 vase. The noise brought ushers on the run. He escaped by taking an 18-foot leap to the street. The third member of the trio was caught on the marquee and went to jail.

Then there were the backers of the Mercury theater and a wooden platform. To put on "Julius Caesar," they needed that platform. The owner wanted $125 cash for it. The actors offered him a quarter interest in the show. He laughed. So they went elsewhere and got a platform. "Julius Caesar" turned out to be a hit and a quarter interest would have meant thousands instead of $125 to the platform owner.

First Free Rural Mail

The first free rural mail delivery in the United States is said to have originated from the postoffice at Thibodaux, La., 60 miles west of New Orleans. It comprised territory between Thibodaux and Labadieville Crossing, and also on both banks of the bayou. The service was established as an experiment and proved successful, due to the dense population of the section. The territory from Thibodaux to Raceland, along the south bank of Bayou Lafourche, is the most thickly settled rural population in the world.

Modernize Your Ring
